

International Development.

The Ford Program in Human Development Studies and Solidarity and the Kellogg Institute for International Studies invite applications for a scholar at either the associate or full professor level who works on themes related to international development, with a strong preference for field work in sub-Saharan Africa.

Kellogg and the Ford Program support research, teaching, and community engagement aimed at understanding the conditions that affect human welfare, including the dynamics of extreme poverty, economic growth and development, health conditions and policy, the political and social determinants of the distribution of wealth and opportunity, politics and public policy, human rights, and human dignity. Applicants would be placed in their disciplinary department: preferably political science, sociology, or economics, and would play a leading intellectual role in the development of the Ford Program. More information on Kellogg and the Ford Program can be found at <http://kellogg.nd.edu>.

Please send letters of inquiry or nomination and a c.v. to Director, Kellogg Institute for International Studies, 130 Hesburgh Center, University of Notre Dame, Notre Dame, IN 46556. Review of applications will begin October 1 and continue until the position is filled. The University of Notre Dame is an affirmative action employer with a strong commitment to fostering a culturally diverse atmosphere for faculty, staff, and students. Women, minorities and those attracted to a university with a Catholic identity are especially encouraged to apply. Information about Notre Dame is available at <http://www.nd.edu>.
